British, French Declare War To Shatter Reich, Foreign Agent Declares

"DOCUMENTS" REVEALED

German Strength In Western Area Forced Spread Of Crisis, Joachim Says

BERLIN, April 27—Documents of "far-reaching importance to international relations throughout the world" and allegedly proving Allied plans to violate the neutrality of defenseless nations were presented to foreign diplomats and newspaper correspondents by Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop at the chancellery today.

Only a short time before, the German government had formally announced that a state of war existed between Norway and the Reich since Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's occupation of that country met with armed resistance.

Addressing himself to the assembled gathering in the ambassadors' chamber of the chancellery as the constituted spokesman of Hitler, Von Ribbentrop said, "On the third of September last year, the Allied powers declared war on Germany, with the object of shattering the Reich and reducing her to a position of international impotence.

"From the beginning, they realized that it would be impossible to smash German resistance on the West Wall. They have tried therefore to spread the war to other fronts."

White Book No. 4

Von Ribbentrop presented to his hearers what was identified as "German White Book Number 4."

This embraced documents taken from British officers captured in Norway and from secret archives in Oslo. The volume was intended to prove "once and for all" that Great Britain intended to seize Norway and Denmark and then attack the Reich "in tacit collusion with the Norwegian government."

The latter had decided, Von Ribbentrop charged, "not to resist any major Allied landing or at least not to get caught fighting on the wrong side of the fence."

In presenting the White Book, Von Ribbentrop said that its publication "will fundamentally change the general conception of the background of this war."

Von Ribbentrop spoke at length of alleged British threat to neutrals, with particular emphasis on Winston Churchill's invitation to all neutral nations to join the Allies in the war against Germany.

"This," he said "was the last warning to the neutrals."

MUCH-JAILED CARR, 30, ADMITS SHOOTING COUNT

CHILLICOTHE, April 27 — Ernest Carr, 30, Bainbridge, indicted on a charge of shooting with intent to kill Marshal Earl Edgington, Bainbridge, pleaded guilty Friday before Judge Howard Goldsberry and was sentenced to serve one to 20 years in prison.

Carr, who with John Richards, 28, and Charles Richards, 20, Eagle Mills brothers, escaped from the Ross County jail a week ago, was picked up in Columbus the next day. The Richards brothers, convicted on a charge of armed robbery of Orville Cooper, are still at large.

Lester S. Reid, prosecutor, said that Carr had served in the Boys' Industrial School, Mansfield Reformatory, Ohio Penitentiary and also at Alcatraz, which, at the time of Carr's imprisonment, was an army prison.

How Allies Predict Nazis Will Invade Sweden

BECAUSE Allied fleets have disrupted German communications with Norway through the Skagerrak, the Nazis are expected to invade Sweden and seize her railroads and highways as a means of getting troops and guns to the Norse battlegrounds. Arrows indicate jumping off places where German soldiers are reported massing. Allies have blocked Swedish iron ore shipments from the Norse port of Narvik. Seizure of Sweden would enable the Nazis to ship ore through the Gulf of Bothnia. Sweden declares she will resist any invasion and has shot down German planes making reconnaissance flights over the country.

ASHVILLE GAINS 14 IN 10 YEARS BAND MAKES HIT AT LANCASTER

Population Census Shows Increase From 1,085 To 1,099

The population of Ashville has increased by 14 persons since 1930, census figures announced Saturday disclose. The 1930 report was 1,085, while the 1940 unofficial figures show the population to be 1,099.

The census bureau pointed out that the 1,099 figure is not a certified one since there is a possibility that some persons may have been missed. Any persons who think they have not been enumerated are asked to send post cards to the Census Supervisor, Chillicothe, O.

Ashville gained only three persons from 1920 to 1930, the total going from 1,082 to 1,085.

WESTERN FRONT FIGHTING RAGES, REPORTS REVEAL

PARIS, April 27—Violent hand-to-hand fighting between French and German troops flared in the Western Front's no man's land today, it was reported in semi-official French military quarters.

Without locating the scene of the fighting, these quarters said the battles resulted in "losses" and ended only when both sides withdrew.

Most of yesterday the Allies and Germans hurled shells at each other in the Saar Sector in what was described as a heavy artillery duel.

West of the Vosges Mountains a German raid with concentrated artillery preparation necessitated the rushing of reinforcements to a French outpost. The position was held, but it was semi-officially admitted the Allies suffered "proportional losses."

Meanwhile, a French high command communique, describing action at the front, said "there was nothing to report."

ATTORNEY GENERAL ILL

COLUMBUS, April 27 — Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert was reported in fair condition today in a report received from an Akron hospital, where he was taken after he was stricken with a severe cold. The state official was in the rubber city to attend the Akron Newspaper Guild Gridiron show when he became ill. He is expected to return to Columbus Sunday.

JEALOUS YOUTH, 16, CONFESSES KILLING HIGH SCHOOL GIRL

PHILADELPHIA, April 27—The tragic aftermath of a high school puppy love affair today found handsome, brilliant Robert Heineman, 16-year-old Abington High School junior, in Montgomery County jail while sorrowing parents made funeral arrangements for the youth's confessed victim—pretty, brown-haired Edith Snyder.

Charged with murder, Heineman was remanded to a cell to await action by the grand jury after he confessed the shooting of his classmate, also, 16, in her Abington home.

Jealousy over the girl's announced interest in another boy led him to fire a bullet into her heart as she sat studying her lessons beneath the rays of a living room floor lamp, Robert told authorities.

Heineman, son of G. H. Heineman, physical education instructor at Temple University, was one of 50 students questioned after the girl's death Thursday night. Suspicion was directed to him by two notes found in Edith's possession and signed "Bob," Assistant District Attorney David E. Groshens revealed.

One note asked Edith to meet him after classes. Otherwise "someone will die," Groshens said the missive added. When police learned the boy had displayed a gun to classmates a few weeks ago, they confronted Robert with his findings.

Jealousy Admitted "All right I did it," Groshens quoted the boy as saying. "I was jealous. I was in love with her and she had dates with other boys. On Sunday she told me she had met the most wonderful boy in the world. I couldn't stand it. I made up my mind to scare her."

Groshens related how the boy stole an automobile, drove to the home of Edward J. Smith—stepfather of the girl—and fired from the Smith porch through a window. Edith died in the arms of a brother, Edward, 17.

War Exists; Nazis Say Struggle On

Conflict Goes On For 19 Days Ere Reich Makes Statement

BERLIN, April 27—After 19 days of terrific fighting in Norwegian territory, Germany today officially declared a state of war exists between the Reich and Norway.

The declaration of war was hardly considered a surprise since the refugee government of King Haakon and Premier Nygaardsvold defied the German invaders from the first Nazi attack in the early morning hours of April 9.

(It was the first time the German government of Chancellor Hitler, on its own initiative, has issued a formal declaration of war. Britain and France were the first to proclaim a state of hostility as a climax to the crisis last September following the German invasion of Poland.)

The declaration of war was signed by Chancellor Hitler on April 24. No reason was given for the delay in its issuance.

Under the decree German military police will be installed in all occupied Norwegian areas.

HIGHWAY CREWS BUSY ON RT. 104 WASHOUT REPAIR

State Highway department employees were busy Saturday on Route 104, in the Westfall school area, repairing the highway washed out by last week end's flood. Officials said that there is a possibility that the highway may be passable by Saturday night.

A large section of pavement was washed out by a tiny stream that goes through the district, the creek taking on great size when flood waters struck it.

French Foreign Legionnaires Smash At Nazis Holding Zone Around Steinkjer; One Advance Of Invaders Halted

Bridge Blown Out Ahead Of Marching Soldiers; Explosives Used To Hold Up Fast Travel Of Hitler's Men

LONDON, April 27—Allied positions on the vital Trondheim Front in Norway have now been "stabilized" and in continuing British patrol activities some prisoners have been taken, a high British military authority said today.

Describing the fighting in the Dombaas area, directly south of Trondheim, this authority said the Germans attacked near the railroad town of Kvam, but were beaten back with heavy losses.

STOCKHOLM, April 27—Fighting the German military juggernaut on four Norwegian fronts, the Allies today were reported stemming the Nazi forces in a series of battles near Trondheim which threatens to become the most decisive of the war.

In the sector at the railroad town of Kvam, 65 miles southeast of Dombaas, a hard-driving German advance was halted by British-Norwegian troops, but to the Northeast two other German columns moved through valleys and mountainous roads toward Trondheim.

The battle for control of Trondheim loomed as of vital importance in the Norwegian campaign as French Foreign Legion troops smashed their hardened war strength against the Germans holding the area around Steinkjer.

Swedish press reports, while agreeing the Germans have not been dislodged from ravaged Steinkjer, said outlying Nazi forces were hurled back with heavy losses.

After occupation of Roeros by a motorized German column fighting its way to meet other Nazi forces at Stoeren, 30 miles south of Trondheim, the Reich troops continued advancing. Blowing up a bridge about three miles north of Roeros, however, halted the Nazi contingent.

A detachment of engineers was left to repair the bridge while the Germans, fearing possible Allied air attacks, retreated through Roeros and joined the main Nazi force at Tynset and Tolga, two railroad towns directly south in the Oesterdal Valley.

Resistance Minor

Throughout the Nazi foray it was reported the invaders met small resistance, but passage over the bridge north of Roeros was necessary for a direct route to the North.

It was reported the Germans, as a result of the bridge blasting, are advancing northward by a different route toward Trondheim through the village of Kvikne.

Norwegian troops in this central Norwegian sector seldom clashed directly with the Germans, but continued a harassing fire from hidden points in the hills. They also used explosives to blast roads along all routes to the North.

At one point not far from Tynset the Norwegians planted dynamite along a rocky cliff overlooking a highway, exploding it when the head of the German motorized force appeared. Two Nazi armored cars were crushed by falling boulders.

British troops, after defeating German troops south of Trondheim, advanced down the Gauldal valley in a relentless move believed to herald a major battle shortly with Nazi forces driving northward toward Trondheim.

FLAMES DAMAGE CHURCH; PIPE ORGAN DESTROYED

COLUMBUS, April 27—Charred ruins were all that remained of the $16,000 pipe organ, altar and some of the furnishings of the First Methodist Church in Columbus, after a three-alarm fire swept through it last night. No estimate of the total damage was available early today.

Smoke and water damaged everything in the auditorium of the structure. The huge skylight at the apex of the ceiling vault was broken. The blaze started in the furnace room beneath the altar. Forty Boy Scouts who were meeting in a rear room escaped without injury.

JEALOUS YOUTH, 16, CONFESSES KILLING HIGH SCHOOL GIRL

PHILADELPHIA, April 27—The tragic aftermath of a high school puppy love affair today found handsome, brilliant Robert Heineman, 16-year-old Abington High School junior, in Montgomery County jail while sorrowing parents made funeral arrangements for the youth's confessed victim—pretty, brown-haired Edith Snyder.

Charged with murder, Heineman was remanded to a cell to await action by the grand jury after he confessed the shooting of his classmate, also, 16, in her Abington home.

Dodgers Reveal Fine Mound Job In Early Games

Fitzsimmons Weighs In With Outfit's Third Shutout; Giants Show Strength; Nicholson's Clout Whips Reds

NEW YORK, April 27—The Brooklyn Dodgers, for years the laughing stock of baseball, today want everyone, especially Bill Terry, to know they are still in the National League—and suggest a look at the records will prove it.

To date, Lippy Leo Durocher's boys have amassed a total of six straight wins against no defeats to take a commanding two game lead in the senior circuit and to set a club record. No Dodger team ever before has won six straight at the start of a season.

Yesterday, veteran Freddie Fitzsimmons scored a 6-0 win over Philadelphia to give the Dodgers their third shutout victory this season. It was in the hurling department, according to the experts that Brooklyn would fall down, but thus far the Flatbush flingers have looked the best in both leagues.

Meanwhile the Cincinnati Reds dropped their second straight encounter to the Chicago Cubs, 6 to 2. Junior Thompson was the victim of the Cubs' batting spree, and had to retire to the showers in the first inning before retiring a single enemy. Bill Nicholson helped Pitcher Claude Passeau win the game with a homer with the bases filled.

New York made it four triumphs in a row at the expense of the Boston Bees, who haven't won a game so far this year. A pinch double by Jo Jo Moore drove in two runs, gave the Giants a 5 to 3 win.

In an uphill climb, Pittsburgh overtook the St. Louis Cardinals with a seven-run rally in the eighth and went on to win 10 to 4. At the same time Mace Brown became the first Pirate pitcher to finish a full game.

In the American League there was a three-way tie for leadership among Cleveland, Boston and Detroit.

Cleveland, after holding sole possession of the top rung, was relegated into the deadlock by the four-hit pitching of Thornton Lee, a Chicago White Sox southpaw. Chicago collected 13 hits off three Tribe hurlers to score an easy 11-1 win.

Boston moved into the select circle by whipping the Yankees 8 to 1, while Detroit was washed into first place when its game with St. Louis was cancelled because of rain and wet grounds.

Washington took the measure of the Philadelphia Athletics, 8-6, to make a clean sweep of a two-game series.

The competition is growing tougher every year in these relays and Robertson tells me the mile is now being run 20 second faster than Harvard's winning time in the first annual 45 years ago. "High school boys," said Robertson, "run faster today than the college boys did in those days."

And the reason? "better conditioning, better tracks, better coaching, and perhaps better runners," he replied.

DEAN, A's HURLER, ONCE INFIELDER

Philly Pitcher Who Beat Yanks Twice This Year May Be Another Bucky Walters

By Walter L. Johns
NEW YORK, April 27—Is Alfred Lovell (Chubby) Dean, the most-talked-about fellow in baseball today, another Bucky Walters?

Maybe yes, maybe no, but the two pitchers have one thing in common — they're both transformed infielders.

On opening day, Dean a Philadelphia Athletics lefthander who pitched only as a relief man last year, set the Yankees down, 2-1. Imagine the surprise of the Yanks and baseball fans in general when the same Dean shut them out, 3-0, in his second appearance against the same club.

Walters as Infielder
Naturally, that pitched the young Mt. Airy, N. C., hurler into the sports spotlight. And with it, the recollection of the career of Walters, now the ace hurler of the Cincinnati Reds, but a former Philadelphia Phillie infielder turned moundsman.

Walters broke into baseball with High Point, N. C., in the Piedmont league back in 1929. He was an infielder. From High Point he progressed through the minors, finally winding up with the Boston Nationals in 1931. He stayed but a short time and it wasn't until 1933 that he came back to the majors to stay. This time he played third base for the Boston Americans.

Walters then was traded to the Philadelphia Phillies and it was here he turned to pitching. He was only a mediocre slaban until 1935 when he won 15 games. Last year he won 27 for the Reds. Walters had become one of those few star players who have changed from player to pitcher and made good.

Handy With Stick

Dean, picked up by Connie Mack in 1936 while still a college baseball star at Duke university, played first base for two years with the A's. Then he also turned to the hill and in 1937 went to the box in two games, winning one. The next year he worked in but six games and won two more. He also was used as a pinch hitter because he is handy with the stick.

Last year, Dean was the A's relief man. He appeared in 54 games, winning five and losing eight. As a batter in 80 games, Dean pounded the ball for a .351 average, making him a very valuable man to have around.

In the spring training this year, Dean's work drew Mack's approval and he was given the starting assignment. The rest is baseball news. Dean is on the way to a good season if he can hold up his end. Perhaps Mack has a real find in this boy, once an infielder.

Dean is 24 years old, stands an inch under six feet and weighs 180 pounds. He throws and bats left-handed. Single, he is a hunting enthusiast in the winter months. He is a graduate of Oak Ridge Military academy and attended Duke university for two years.

Bonura Goes Back To Washington Senators

NEW YORK, April 27—The strangest case in the sometimes strange recent history of the New York Giants was closed today with the sale of Zeke Bonura back to the Washington Senators. No player ever tried harder to please and few have come so close to succeeding without doing it. None within memory has been treated more shabbily than the big first baseman from New Orleans. Having been around so many years, he was justified in assuming that he was a pretty good ball player, but Manager Bill Terry soured on his fielding and at that point the humiliation set in.

He was so thoroughly ridiculed by Terry in public prints that the Giants couldn't very well keep him and nobody else would have him, until the Senators finally regained him for an undisclosed amount of cash and a minor league in a deal announced by the Giants late yesterday.

Thus, after having moved out of the American League—from the Senators to the Giants—on waivers prior to the 1939 season, he transferred back to the American League in this deal by the same process, and if the New York Yankees falter and the American League race tightens up, he might be a tremendous help to the Senators.

On the other hand, if the Giants by some strange quirk of fate should find themselves in the National League race and without a hitter to play first base, they might miss Bonura. Right now Babe Young is clouting at a .475 pace. But this can't and won't last.

He suddenly might begin hitting .175, or the approximate batting average of his understudy, Jack McCarthy, who so far hasn't been able to make the first nine. Anyhow, Bonura led the Giants in hitting last year and got himself in solidly with the fans and his team-mates because of his enthusiasm, only to windup finally with his $15,000 salary slashed to $7,500 and his hopes rather rudely shaken by the Reds' outbursts for publication.

After considerable bickering, he finally signed a Giant contract for $10,000.

It's all a little perplexing. He was a $15,000 club-batting champion one year and a $10,000 bench-warmer who was waived out of the League the next. Try to locate one like that in the books.

Millers to Invade Red Bird Park; Rabe Liked

COLUMBUS, April 27—Those pesky Millers are coming to town, Sunday at 1:30, Tom Sheehan's Minneapolis club will cross bats with the Red Birds for the first time in 1940 at Red Bird Stadium. For the last two years they have been making things miserable for Manager Burt Shotton of the Flock. Last season the Birds were only able to down the Millers four times in 22 starts and the Birds did not fare as well in 1938.

Shotton hopes that he has a "Miller Killer" this year in the person of young Bill Rabe. Maybe Bill can fill the shoes of the men that sent the Millers back to a doleful Minneapolis in years gone by. In 1933 there was Ralph Judd's extra inning clutch home run in the final playoff game. In 1934 Lew Riggs did it with a clutch homer in the late innings of the sixth game of the final playoff against Joe Shaute. Later came Enos Slaughter and Johnny Rizzo. Not forgetting for one minute Nick Cullop.

Rabe, who at present is patrolling left field for the Flock, will celebrate his 19th birthday on the 9th of May. Weighing but 155 and only five feet nine inches tall, Bill does not look the part of a fence buster. Bill hit .304 with Daytona Beach in the Florida State league and tied the home run record for the loop with ten circuit clouts. Because of the extreme size of the parks in this league, this is indeed quite a feat.

In addition to his homers, he hit 23 triples, which constitutes a new league record. Even hitting in the lead off spot he drove in 62 runs and scored 120 runs, which led the loop.

Rabe's fast, sure fielder of both ground and fly balls, has a powerful throwing arm, never throws to the wrong base and can do about everything at the plate.

The little right handed hitter started the season off with a bang by slamming Brewer Frank Makosky's first pitch to him over left fielder Peck's head for two bases. Who knows? Maybe Little O' Bill Rabe's booming bat will silence the echoes of Miller Jockey Ray Kolp's haunting cries of years gone by, that still seem to float ghastrly over the Stadium on the eve of the opening of a Minneapolis series and whisper, "Too much power for you Burt, too much power."

Dodgers Reveal Fine Mound Job In Early Games

Fitzsimmons Weighs In With Outfit's Third Shutout; Giants Show Strength; Nicholson's Clout Whips Reds

NEW YORK, April 27—The Brooklyn Dodgers, for years the laughing stock of baseball, today want everyone, especially Bill Terry, to know they are still in the National League—and suggest a look at the records will prove it.

To date, Lippy Leo Durocher's boys have amassed a total of six straight wins against no defeats to take a commanding two game lead in the senior circuit and to set a club record. No Dodger team ever before has won six straight at the start of a season.

Yesterday, veteran Freddie Fitzsimmons scored a 6-0 win over Philadelphia to give the Dodgers their third shutout victory this season. It was in the hurling department, according to the experts that Brooklyn would fall down, but thus far the Flatbush flingers have looked the best in both leagues.

Meanwhile the Cincinnati Reds dropped their second straight encounter to the Chicago Cubs, 6 to 2. Junior Thompson was the victim of the Cubs' batting spree, and had to retire to the showers in the first inning before retiring a single enemy. Bill Nicholson helped Pitcher Claude Passeau win the game with a homer with the bases filled.

New York made it four triumphs in a row at the expense of the Boston Bees, who haven't won a game so far this year. A pinch double by Jo Jo Moore drove in two runs, gave the Giants a 5 to 3 win.

In an uphill climb, Pittsburgh overtook the St. Louis Cardinals with a seven-run rally in the eighth and went on to win 10 to 4. At the same time Mace Brown became the first Pirate pitcher to finish a full game.

In the American League there was a three-way tie for leadership among Cleveland, Boston and Detroit.

Cleveland, after holding sole possession of the top rung, was relegated into the deadlock by the four-hit pitching of Thornton Lee, a Chicago White Sox southpaw. Chicago collected 13 hits off three Tribe hurlers to score an easy 11-1 win.

Boston moved into the select circle by whipping the Yankees 8 to 1, while Detroit was washed into first place when its game with St. Louis was cancelled because of rain and wet grounds.

Washington took the measure of the Philadelphia Athletics, 8-6, to make a clean sweep of a two-game series.

DEAN, A's HURLER, ONCE INFIELDER

Philly Pitcher Who Beat Yanks Twice This Year May Be Another Bucky Walters

About This And That In Many Sports

Whether Circleville will have a softball league this summer depends on a couple of things that haven't yet happened Several backers are ready to put teams on the field, but not enough have expressed themselves as ready to go to the expense of supporting a team unless they know that the loop will be well organized and will continue through the summer The other question, and even a more paramount one, is whether lights now standing at the High School Athletic Field will be removed to the northend playground lot during the summer There are some who say the lights will be transferred, and soon, and there are others who say this is entirely untrue The lights belong to the Circleville High School Athletic Field Improvement Association, the school paying off the light debt from proceeds of each football game A balance of about $700 remains to be paid From this corner it appears that the lights should be kept at the high school at least until a satisfactory football field has been provided in the northend It used to be possible to play a football game on any field, but many angles go into a grid layout now Bleachers would have to be provided, and above all, a fence would have to be erected to handle crowds High school football games can't be operated by passing the hat, and neither can electricity that would be required for night ball games be paid for from a hat, especially when collections as low as 40 and 50 cents are gathered Oftimes no collection is taken

Circleville should have night softball and from this corner it seems to be a shame that the step has not been taken long before this, BUT there are many questions to be taken into consideration before the definite announcement is made that high school football games will be played any where other than at the high school next fall

COLUMBUS, April 27—Those pesky Millers are coming to town, Sunday at 1:30, Tom Sheehan's Minneapolis club will cross bats with the Red Birds for the first time in 1940 at Red Bird Stadium. For the last two years they have been making things miserable for Manager Burt Shotton of the Flock. Last season the Birds were only able to down the Millers four times in 22 starts and the Birds did not fare as well in 1938.

Shotton hopes that he has a "Miller Killer" this year in the person of young Bill Rabe. Maybe Bill can fill the shoes of the men that sent the Millers back to a doleful Minneapolis in years gone by. In 1933 there was Ralph Judd's extra inning clutch home run in the final playoff game. In 1934 Lew Riggs did it with a clutch homer in the late innings of the sixth game of the final playoff against Joe Shaute. Later came Enos Slaughter and Johnny Rizzo. Not forgetting for one minute Nick Cullop.

Rabe, who at present is patrolling left field for the Flock, will celebrate his 19th birthday on the 9th of May. Weighing but 155 and only five feet nine inches tall, Bill does not look the part of a fence buster. Bill hit .304 with Daytona Beach in the Florida State league and tied the home run record for the loop with ten circuit clouts. Because of the extreme size of the parks in this league, this is indeed quite a feat.

In addition to his homers, he hit 23 triples, which constitutes a new league record. Even hitting in the lead off spot he drove in 62 runs and scored 120 runs, which led the loop.

Rabe's a fast, sure fielder of both ground and fly balls, has a powerful throwing arm, never throws to the wrong base and can do about everything at the plate. The little right handed hitter started the season off with a bang by slamming Brewer Frank Makosky's first pitch to him over left fielder Peck's head for two bases.

Who knows? Maybe Little O' Bill Rabe's booming bat will silence the echoes of Miller Jockey Ray Kolb's haunting cries of years gone by, that still seem to float ghostly over the Stadium on the eve of the opening of a Minneapolis series and whisper, "Too much power for you Burt, too much power."

Hundred Methodist Men of County Take Part in Friday Eve Program

Prof. Homer Cotterman Of Capital University Featured Speaker

Methodist men of Pickaway County, 100 strong enjoyed an outstanding meeting Friday evening in the Circleville Church. The meeting was the regular one of the Pickaway County Brotherhood organization, Homer Reber, president of the Brotherhood, presiding.

The evening was started with a dinner served at 7 o'clock by ladies of the church, after which a program planned by the Rev. Charles F. Bowman, host pastor, was offered. It included group singing of old favorite songs, quartette numbers and piano solos. A quartette comprised of George Roth, Glen Gelb, Barton Deming and John Hegele sang "The Church in the Wilderness," "The Bulldog on the Bank," "My Anchor Holds" and "Remember Me," accompanied by Hunter Chambers, who later played Paderewski's "Minuet" and then offered McDowell's "To a Wild Rose" as an encore.

The evening's address proved a highly interesting one, Prof. Homer Cotterman, Ph. D., of Capital University, discussing "Facts and Figures." He covered many subjects during his talk, citing the need for conservation of soil, the need for existence of birds, safety in traffic, peace and war, and finally the advantage our nation offers us which are not available in other countries of the World.

During his address he brought out many philosophical points that drove his ideas home to the men attending the meeting.

A check of attendance disclosed 49 present from Circleville, 11 from Williamsport, two from Mount Pleasant, 14 from Hedges Chapel, four from Ashville, nine from Commercial Point, four from South Bloomfield, six from New Holland, one from Tarlton.

Mr. Reber appointed Clarence Hott, chairman, B. F. Harden and Charles Radloff as a committee to plan a Brotherhood outing during the summer.

Isaiah Comforts the People

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Isaiah 40.

Isaiah, called greatest of the prophets, was an aristocrat and lived in Jerusalem. He was the court preacher and had a great deal of influence in the politics of the times.

All flesh is grass or as the flower of the field. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, but "the word of our God shall stand forever," Isaiah comforts his people.

The Lord Jehovah will feed His flock like a shepherd. He will gather the lambs in His arms, and carry them in His bosom. Isaiah promises the people of Jerusalem.

"The workman melteth a graven image, and the goldsmith spreadeth it over with gold, and casteth silver chains," but this is not our God. (GOLDEN TEXT—Ps. 46:1)

"God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." —Ps. 46:1.

Hundred Methodist Men of County Take Part in Friday Eve Program

Prof. Homer Cotterman Of Capital University Featured Speaker

Methodist men of Pickaway County, 100 strong enjoyed an outstanding meeting Friday evening in the Circleville Church. The meeting was the regular one of the Pickaway County Brotherhood organization, Homer Reber, president of the Brotherhood, presiding.

The evening was started with a dinner served at 7 o'clock by ladies of the church, after which a program planned by the Rev. Charles F. Bowman, host pastor, was offered. It included group singing of old favorite songs, quartette numbers and piano solos. A quartette comprised of George Roth, Glen Geb, Barton Deming and John Hegele sang "The Church in the Wilderness", "The Bulldog on the Bank", "My Anchor Holds" and "Remember Me", accompanied by Hunter Chambers, who later played Paderewski's "Minuet" and then offered McDowell's "To a Wild Rose" as an encore.

The evening's address proved a highly interesting one, Prof. Homer Cotterman, Ph. D., of Capital University, discussing "Facts and Figures". He covered many subjects during his talk, citing the need for conservation of soil, the need for existence of birds, safety in traffic, peace and war, and finally the advantage our nation offers us which are not available in other countries of the world.

During his address he brought out many philosophical points that drove his ideas home to the men attended the meeting.

A check of attendance disclosed 49 present from Circleville, 11 from Williamsport, two from Mount Pleasant, 14 from Hedges Chapel, four from Ashville, nine from Commercial Point, four from South Bloomfield, six from New Holland, one from Tarlton.

Mr. Reber appointed Clarence Hott, chairman, B. F. Harden and Charles Radcliff as a committee to plan a Brotherhood outing during the summer.

In celebration of its golden anniversary, the Ashville Methodist charge will have a special all-day session Sunday. The Rev. Frank M. Evans of Plain City, formerly connected with the Ashville church, will be guest speaker. He will speak at the 10 o'clock service.

Many former pastors and members of the church are expected to return for the program. A basket dinner will be followed by an afternoon session, beginning at 1:30 p. m.

The session will be devoted largely to remarks by returning visitors and members who were active in the church in its early days.

The public is invited to attend.

Isaiah Comforts the People

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Isaiah 40.

By Alfred J. Buescher

Isaiah, called greatest of the prophets, was an aristocrat and lived in Jerusalem. He was the court preacher and had a great deal of influence in the politics of the times.

All flesh is grass or as the flower of the field. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, but "the word of our God shall stand forever." Isaiah comforts his people.

The Lord Jehovah will feed His flock, like a shepherd, He will gather the lambs in His arms, and carry them in His bosom. Isaiah promises the people of Jerusalem.

"The workman melteth a graven image, and the goldsmith spreadeth it over with gold, and casteth silver chains," but this is not our God. (GOLDEN TEXT—Ps. 46:1)

RUSSIA BACKS OUT

ONE bright spot, anyway, appears in the European war picture. It is the announcement made from Moscow, that "Russia is not going to participate in this war."

All statements from Moscow apparently have to be made with ill grace, and this is no exception. "Whether France and England like it or not," says the Red spokesman, "Russia in the future will continue to pursue her own policy of neutrality and no participation." It would have been more accurate to say "resume" instead of "pursue" a neutrality policy, but never mind that.

As usual, the Reds seem to see things crookedly, and obscure the issue, and feel obliged to do even a good deed with ill grace. They weep crocodile tears for the woes of Norway and the expected woes of Sweden, which they were lately planning to attack themselves or divide with Germany, as they did in the case of Poland. Britain and France, they complain tearfully, are deliberately dragging those innocent Scandinavian countries into the war and "seizing" them on the pretext of guarding their independence.

The Allies obviously needed a place where they could fight Nazism in open warfare, and seem to welcome the opportunity that Scandinavia affords them. But Americans know who violated Norway and is now preparing to violate Sweden.

As for Russia, the heroic sacrifice of Finland bears fruit. Finland's defense so crippled the apparent victor that the latter not only will not, but dare not, undertake another war. The fact may keep out the canny Mussolini. And if neither Stalin nor Mussolini will help Hitler, his system is doomed.

MOST IMPORTANT PAPERS

THAT American public opinion is molded by small-town newspapers rather than the big city press, was stressed by a speaker at the recent convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. True public opinion first takes shape on the farms and in the home towns. That puts great responsibility on the editor of the paper with 50,000 circulation or less, but gives zest to his work.

Readers in the small cities and towns and in the farming areas have as quick access to national and world news today as anyone else. Their local papers carry such matters without losing contact with home affairs and interests.

Editors and publishers know these things about their own papers, but it's gratifying to have a word of appreciation spoken in public now and then.

A petrified oyster found in Texas is more than four feet long and three feet wide. Imagine a plateful of such bivalves on the half shell!

MEMO ON ICELAND WARNS U. S.

WASHINGTON—The State Department has received a confidential memorandum from Arctic explorer Vilhjalmur Stefansson stating that Iceland could be brought under the Monroe Doctrine and warning that this important stepping-stone in mid-Atlantic could be used for Nazi air-raids against the United States.

Iceland was under the Danish crown up until the Nazi invasion, and is now courting the friendship of the United States. Stefansson is an American citizen of Icelandic parentage, and his account of the strategic value of his native island has stirred U. S. officials. The War Department has even engaged him as a special adviser.

Since the Nazi invasion of Denmark, State Department officials have been particularly impressed by two points in the Stefansson report. They are:

1. A German expedition made a survey of Iceland which purported to be for the innocent purpose of stimulating "glider flying" among Icelanders. But Icelanders are "now convinced that they had been victims of an essentially military survey."

2. That "Germany probably has a better grasp now of the strategic value of Iceland, both naval and aeronautic, than is possessed even by the Icelanders themselves."

Stefansson pointed out that Iceland is open the year round for flying purposes; that the average temperature at Reykjavik, the capital, is the same as at Philadelphia; and that snow seldom remains on the ground, even in January, for more than two or three weeks at a time.

The punch in his memo is this sentence: "The United States should consider of significance the establishment by a foreign power of a new air base within a thousand miles of the continent of North America."

NOTE—Though the United States, following invasion of Denmark and Norway, has decided not to disburse Export-Import Bank credits to the Scandinavian countries, this does not affect a credit of $1,000,000 to Iceland, which is still available.

Utility tycoon Wendell Willkie has been drumming up a lot of publicity for his presidential boom, but getting nowhere with the GOP leaders. While in Washington he asked one wise old hand for advice.

If you really were smart you would have run for the Democratic nomination, for two reasons: First, it would have minimized the utility curse; and second, because we Republicans won't touch you with a ten-foot pole."

What We Gain From Soft Drinks

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

What is the composition of soft drinks and their nutritional value?

Most soft drinks of the bottled variety contain from eight to 10 per cent carbohydrate, making a bottle yield about 100 calories, which is equal to about a slice of bread. Dissolved in the drink is carbon dioxide gas, which makes it fizzy. This probably causes it to get from the stomach to the intestines in shorter time and it is in the intestines it is absorbed and quenches thirst. Hence the carbonation is an advantage on thirsty days.

Soft drinks, unless specifically stated, contain no vitamins or minerals.

fruit juices (lemonade, etc.) contain citric and other acids which give the characteristic flavor but which are immediately turned to alkalis or buffer substances in the blood and do not increase the acidity of the body.

Buttermilk contains no fat if it is of the skim variety, but whole buttermilk contains about four per cent fat, which doubles the caloric value. It is a fine source of calcium and phosphorus. The sourness is caused by some benevolent bacteria, which may be good for constipation.

Iced coffee has only the nutritional value of the sugar contained in it. Its reviving effect is due to caffeine, which increases the blood flow through the heart, kidneys and brain.

session with me. Do such things penetrate the walls of the stomach and intestines? What is the danger or is the seriousness of the whole thing quite remote?"

Answer—We all probably eat small pieces of foreign objects which pass through the digestive tract and do no injury. Half a dozen physicians to whom I have talked can recall no case in which any clinical condition resulted. In some people frequently swallow very large foreign objects without doing themselves any harm.

J. D. G.: "How much blood can a man of 40 years, weighing 150 pounds, lose? I have a case in mind where it was estimated that three quarts were lost by vomiting and recovery occurred without transfusion."

Answer: The estimate generally given is that a human body, age and weight as you describe, has six or seven quarts of blood, and that 40 per cent of the blood in the body can be lost. This, however, is the upper limit. Estimates of the amount of blood lost by vomiting are notoriously unreliable.

After the defenders had ripped off four diamond tricks, and needed only one more to defeat the contract, East led the club 2. South promptly saw that his only chance to run nine consecutive tricks lay in making four club tricks in addition to the five which were certain in the major suits. Reduced still further, his problem was to prevent the club Q from winning a trick.

er to finesse against the Q or try to drop it, South postponed the decision. He came in with the A, knowing he could finesse later if he decided to. But when West played the 8, he had all the additional evidence he required.

First, he decided that East, holding only a doubleton or trebleton, headed by a small card, would have led the top of it. Therefore, East had at least four, since he led the 2. If he had held five, he would have bid the suit first instead of diamonds. Hence he had exactly four and West two. If West had the 8 and a smaller one, he should have played the smaller one on the first club trick. Therefore, South deduced West had the Q, and consequently played his K next, dropping it and assuring the success of his risky contract, bid without any diamond stopper.

THE KILLER SPEAKS

RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR

McGUIRE motioned to me across the courtroom. Reluctantly I went through the swinging door in the railing and mounted the witness stand. I couldn't very well refuse.

I repeated the story I had told him earlier. "Yes, I looked out the upstairs bathroom window," I said. "I saw Mr. Montcalm come out of the clubhouse and stumble over the body. He did not strike Markham. He acted frightened."

"Witnesses have testified that someone threw a stool into the river," Harvey McGuire reminded me. "Did you see anyone else in the garden?"

"I saw no one in the garden but Jerry and—the body."

"You didn't see William Calla?"

"No."

"How do you account for that?"

"There may have been willow trees in the way, or possibly he was around the corner of the building from me."

"Do you have any reason to doubt his story?"

"None at all. He described Mr. Montcalm's actions exactly as I saw them."

"In the rose arbor."

"Could a man have thrown it from there into the river? Was the river close enough?"

"A very strong man might be able to make such a throw."

"The rose arbor was in plain view from the bathroom window?"

"It was."

"Can you swear there was no one in the rose arbor?"

I hesitated. "No, I can't swear it. I saw no one there."

I was waved down from the stand by a very puzzled district attorney. He asked Jerry if he was willing to testify. Jerry nodded, swallowed hard, and took the stand.

The judge warned him that anything he said might be held against him. He did not need to answer questions.

"I have nothing to hide," Jerry told him.

"Did you throw anything into the river?" the district attorney asked.

"No, sir. Nothing."

"Mr. Strickland says that as far as he could see there was no one else in the garden. Mr. Strickland was upstairs. You have testified that you saw him go upstairs. Was he carrying a stool at that time?"

Jerry looked surprised. "No. He was not."

"Are you sure?"

"Sure I'm sure. He had nothing in his hands."

The district attorney looked helplessly at the judge. "They say somebody threw something in the river," he shrugged his shoulders. "It's beyond me. No more questions."

George Markham spoke up. "If it please the court, I have something more to say."

The judge raised his eyebrows. "You wish to testify?"

"I would like the coroner to answer one question. Was my brother stabbed by a man who was right-handed or left-handed?"

The coroner, who was one of the spectators and had taken no part in the hearing, but on request from Harvey McGuire he went forward to the witness stand, was sworn in and given the question.

"There is no way to determine positively that George Markham was stabbed by a left-handed assailant," he said, "but the position of the wound indicated that it could have been inflicted more easily by a left-handed man." He gave a technical description of the course followed by the blade that struck Alfred's heart. "Any evidence of this nature is nullified in part, at least, by the peculiar shape of the instrument we believe was used. We believe it was a garden trowel with a T-shaped handle. Such a trowel might have been held in a closed fist, the blade projecting out between the fingers, or it might have been gripped as a knife would be gripped. The angle of the blade would vary accordingly."

A girl flung herself between them and throw her arms around Jerry's neck.

"But is it your expert opinion," the judge asked, "that the wound more likely was made by an instrument in the hands of a left-handed person?"

"It seems more likely. I cannot testify that that was the case."

The judge nodded. "I see no need for further testimony." He addressed the courtroom. "I can find nothing against Mr. Montcalm but the circumstantial evidence that he was the first person to find the body of the deceased, someone well hidden. In regard to this last testimony, I am well enough acquainted with the accused to know that he is right-handed—and awkward with his left hand. Case is dismissed. Discharge the prisoner."

George Markham was one of the first to rush forward and congratulate Jerry. "I take all the blame," he said. "I acted on impulse. I am dreadfully sorry."

A girl flung herself between them and threw her arms around Jerry's neck. "Oh, Jerry! Jerry!" Her face was buried on his coat. She was sobbing.

He put his arms comfortingly around her. "It's all over, Muriel. All over!" I don't think he ever saw George.

I elbowed out through the crowd. My feeling was one of vast relief. The testimony I had feared would come out, had not even been hinted. Behind me was the flash of photographic bulbs, but the Markham family would not be in the headlines. The story now was Jerry—all Jerry.

There was no sense in my congratulating him now. I would speak to him later, when the public left him in peace. Or should I say, when the public left Jerry and Muriel in peace?

I saw reporters rushing to the telephone booths outside the courtroom. Each was in a hurry to get his story to his editor first. Belzer was among them, but instead of hurrying to a booth he was talking with a man I recognized as a plain clothes officer.

When Belzer and the officer parted I approached my former confederate. "Too bad The Morning Eagle doesn't put out a midday edition," I told him. "For once I'm afraid you're scooped."

"But—what you think?"

"Why should I telephone an exclusive story?"

"Do you know something that didn't come out in this testimony?"

"You'll be surprised!" He gave me a look I didn't like, and walked away.

Puzzled, I turned to a telephone booth myself. I wanted to report the good news to Louise Markham.

In the booth next to mine was the plain clothes officer. He had neglected to shut the door tightly and I heard him say: "Listen, Chief, here's a hot tip from Belzer of The Morning Eagle. He says to send someone right out to search William Strickland's room on Laurel street. You know the address. Yeah. He says Strickland's been holding out some evidence on us. Hurry. This guy Strickland may be on his way home now."

RUSSIA BACKS OUT

ONE bright spot, anyway, appears in the European war picture. It is the announcement made from Moscow, that "Russia is not going to participate in this war."

All statements from Moscow apparently have to be made with ill grace, and this is no exception. "Whether France and England like it or not," says the Red spokesman, "Russia in the future will continue to pursue her own policy of neutrality and no participation." It would have been more accurate to say "resume" instead of "pursue" a neutrality policy, but never mind that.

As usual, the Reds seem to see things crookedly, and obscure the issue, and feel obliged to do even a good deed with ill grace. They weep crocodile tears for the woes of Norway and the expected woes of Sweden, which they were lately planning to attack themselves or divide with Germany, as they did in the case of Poland. Britain and France, they complain tearfully, are deliberately dragging those innocent Scandinavian countries into the war and "seizing" them on the pretext of guarding their independence.

The Allies obviously needed a place where they could fight Nazism in open warfare, and seem to welcome the opportunity that Scandinavia affords them. But Americans know who violated Norway and is now preparing to violate Sweden.

As for Russia, the heroic sacrifice of Finland bears fruit. Finland's defense so crippled the apparent victor that the latter not only will not, but dare not, undertake another war. The fact may keep out the canny Mussolini. And if neither Stalin nor Mussolini will help Hitler, his system is doomed.

MOST IMPORTANT PAPERS

THAT American public opinion is molded by small-town newspapers rather than the big city press, was stressed by a speaker at the recent convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. True public opinion first takes shape on the farms and in the home towns. That puts great responsibility on the editor of the paper with 50,000 circulation or less, but gives zest to his work.

Readers in the small cities and towns and in the farming areas have as quick access to national and world news today as anyone else. Their local papers carry such matters without losing contact with home affairs and interests.

Editors and publishers know these things about their own papers, but it's gratifying to have a word of appreciation spoken in public now and then.

Reduced still further, his problem was to prevent the club Q from winning a trick.

In order to get a line on whether to finesse against the Q or try to drop it, South postponed the decision. He came in with the A, knowing he could finesse later if he decided to. But when West played the 8, he had all the additional evidence he required.

First, he decided that East, holding only a doubleton or trebleton, headed by a small card, would have led the top of it. Therefore, East had at least four, since he led the 2. If he had held five, he would have bid the suit first instead of diamonds. Hence he had exactly four and West two. If West had the 8 and a smaller one, he should have played the smaller one on the first club trick. Therefore, South decided West had the Q, and consequently played his K next, dropping it and assuring the success of his risky contract, bid without any diamond stopper.

THE KILLER SPEAKS

RICHARD HOUGHTON
WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR

McGUIRE motioned to me across the courtroom. Reluctantly I went through the swinging door in the railing and mounted the witness stand. I couldn't very well refuse.

I repeated the story I had told him earlier. "Yes, I looked out the upstairs bathroom window," I said. "I saw Mr. Montcalm come out of the clubhouse and stumble over the body. He did not strike Markham. He acted frightened."

"Witnesses have testified that someone threw a stool into the river," Harvey McGuire reminded me. "Did you see anyone else in the garden?"

"I saw no one in the garden but Jerry and the body."

"You didn't see William Calla?"

"No."

"How do you account for that?"

"There may have been willow trees in the way, or possibly he was around the corner of the building from me."

"Do you have any reason to doubt his story?"

"None at all. He described Mr. Montcalm's actions exactly as I saw them."

"In the rose arbor."

"Could a man have thrown it from there into the river? Was the river close enough?"

"A very strong man might be able to make such a throw."

"The rose arbor was in plain view from the bathroom window?"

"It was."

"Can you swear there was no one in the rose arbor?"

I hesitated. "No, I can't swear it. I saw no one there."

I was waved down from the stand by a very puzzled district attorney. He asked Jerry if he was willing to testify. Jerry nodded, swallowed hard, and took the stand.

The judge warned him that anything he said might be held against him. He did not need to answer questions.

"I have nothing to hide," Jerry told him.

"Did you throw anything into the river?" the district attorney asked.

"No, sir. Nothing."

"Mr. Strickland says that as far as he could see there was no one else in the garden. Mr. Strickland was upstairs. You have testified that you saw him go upstairs. Was he carrying a stool at that time?"

Jerry looked surprised. "No. He was not."

"Are you sure?"

"Sure I'm sure. He had nothing in his hands."

The district attorney looked helplessly at the judge. "They say somebody threw something in the river." He shrugged his shoulders. "It's beyond me. No more questions."

George Markham spoke up. "If it please the court, I have something more to say."

The judge raised his eyebrows. "You wish to testify?"

"I would like the coroner to answer one question. Was my brother stabbed by a man who was right-handed or left-handed?"

The coroner, who was one of the spectators and had taken no part in the hearing, seemed flustered for a moment, but on request from Harvey McGuire he went forward to the witness stand, was sworn in and given the question.

"There is no way to determine positively that George Markham was stabbed by a left-handed assailant," he said, "but the position of the wound indicated that it could have been inflicted more easily by a left-handed man." He gave a technical description of the course followed by the blade that struck Alfred's heart. "Any evidence of this nature is nullified in part, at least, by the peculiar shape of the instrument we believe was used. We believe it was a garden trowel with a T-shaped handle. Such a trowel might have been held in a closed fist, the blade projecting out between the fingers, or it might have been gripped as a knife would be gripped. The angle of the blade would vary accordingly."

"But is it your expert opinion," the judge asked, "that the wound more likely was made by an instrument in the hands of a left-handed person?"

"It seems more likely. I cannot testify that that was the case."

The judge nodded. "I see no need for further testimony." He addressed the courtroom. "I can find nothing against Mr. Montcalm but the circumstantial evidence that he was the first person to find the body of the deceased. Evidence tends to show that there was someone else in the garden—someone well hidden. In regard to this last testimony, I am well enough acquainted with the accused to know that he is right-handed—and awkward with his left hand. Case is dismissed. Discharge the prisoner."

George Markham was one of the first to rush forward and congratulate Jerry. "I take all the blame," he said. "I acted on impulse. I am dreadfully sorry."

A girl flung herself between them and threw her arms around Jerry's neck. "Oh, Jerry! Jerry!" Her face was buried on his coat. She was sobbing.

He put his arms comfortingly around her. "It's all over, Muriel. All over!" I don't think he ever saw George.

I elbowed out through the crowd. My feeling was one of vast relief. The testimony I had feared would come out, had not even been hinted. Behind me was the flash of photographic bulbs, but the Markham family would not be in the headlines. The story now was Jerry—all Jerry.

There was no sense in my congratulating him now. I would speak to him later, when the public left him in peace. Or should I say, when the public left Jerry and Muriel in peace?

I saw reporters rushing to the telephone booths outside the courtroom. Each was in a hurry to get his story to his editor first. Belzer was among them, but instead of hurrying to a booth he was talking with a man I recognized as a plain clothes officer.

When Belzer and the officer parted I approached my former confederate. "Too bad The Morning Eagle doesn't put out a midday edition," I told him. "For once I'm afraid you're scooped."

"That's what you think."

"But—you didn't even telephone."

"Why should I telephone an exclusive story?"

"Do you know something that didn't come out in this testimony?"

"You'll be surprised!" He gave me a look I didn't like, and walked away.

Puzzled, I turned to a telephone booth myself. I wanted to report the good news to Louise Markham.

In the booth next to mine was the plain clothes officer. He had neglected to shut the door tightly and I heard him say: "Listen, Chief, here's a hot tip from Belzer of The Morning Eagle. He says to send someone right out to search William Strickland's room on Laurel street. You know the address. Yeah. He says Strickland's been holding out some evidence on us. Hurry. This guy Strickland may be on his way home now."

GUIDANCE FORUM ENDS THIS WEEK

The vocational guidance program was concluded Thursday. During the week a number of professional men and women talked to the high school group.

On Monday, an assembly was called for the girls only. During this discussion Miss Margaret Hunsicker, County nurse, spoke on nursing. Miss Clara Southward spoke on social work. Miss Hunsicker reviewed the steps which must be taken in order to become a nurse and pointed out that long hours of study and practice in the hospital were dominate in a future nurse's training. To be a good nurse one must have good health, a desire to help people in need, and a thorough understanding of your work.

Miss Southward, who spoke on social work, stated that her job required a liking for people and patience. She also said that much of the success of a social welfare worker depended upon her ability to find out the desired facts tactfully. Her work also demands a reasonable amount of nurses' training.

Tuesday, Principal J. Wray Henry introduced to an assembly of both boys and girls, Ray Rowland of the Purina Mills and Tom Wilson, publisher of the Circleville Herald.

Mr. Rowland spoke on salesmanship. He said that selling a product depends upon the salesman, his personality, his confidence in his product and the customer.

Mr. Wilson discussed journalism and a college graduate's opportunity to secure and hold a job on a newspaper.

Wednesday afternoon at 1:45, Dr. E. L. Montgomery spoke on medicine. Dr. Montgomery stated that to become a doctor, one must have at least nine years of study and hospital practice and that one must work hard to secure a doctor's degree.

At 2:45 on Thursday the last speakers in this forum appeared before the assembly.

These speakers were Miss Bennett and Miss Gordon, both of whom teach secretarial courses at a Columbus Business College.

Miss Gordon pointed out the important things which enable one to become a successful secretary. She said that personality is equally as important as skill in this vocation.

Miss Gordon stated that a good secretary "hears all, sees all, and says nothing" and she never makes the same mistake twice.

Miss Bennett demonstrated and explained how the stenotype machine operates. It is smaller than a typewriter but much the same in appearance. It's among the most modern of office equipment.

LANCASTER SITE OF MUSIC FETE

Lancaster was the scene of the second Central Ohio Band Festival yesterday. The four organizations assembled at the high school building at 3:00 and prepared for their march through the business section of the city.

William McBride, director of music at O. S. U., and conductor of the first concert at Mt. Vernon, listened to the members rendered by the bands while on the march and gave his criticisms to the directors of the four organizations.

At the concert in the evening the program was the same as the one given at Mt. Vernon and the solos, trios, and quartets were the same selections rendered at the previous concert.

EDITORIAL — ART

Art has been a recent addition to our school's curriculum. It has been a revelation in many ways. Where one has least expected to find it, talent has been discovered. Each year more pupils become interested in art and have found it is something that can be used in their future work.

This is the fourth year of art in the Circleville schools. As yet, it is still in its infancy, for the inequity in this department is inadequate.

If more of our citizens knew what is being done in Circleville schools with insufficient equipment and amateur talent, I am sure that art would soon become a major study.

Art has a refining influence; it teaches one that beauty can be found in the most unexpected places. Sometimes the smallest kodak picture brings out shadows and artistic values that one may not have noticed before. A true artist does not try to paint nature leaf by leaf, but reproduces it on his canvas as it appears and appeals to him. A scene will impress people differently. Some like to portray cities and storms; while others, still-life and peaceful rural scenes. Art is like fingerprinting — there are never two scenes exactly alike, though they may be similar.

Thus art is like opportunity; if it knocks once and you fail to answer, when and if it knocks again, the chance may not be the same. So let us give art the necessary "boost" which will make it an academic subject with full credit.

Only a few insiders know it, but the dramatic rebuff took place a

Lewis' paneled, high-ceilinged pri-he was up against a very serious situation and needed help badly.

Lewis shook his head.

"But why not? You put up

"Yes, but we've got a new by-was Guffey's advocacy of a third term for Roosevelt. Guffey is a strong third term man and ran on that platform while Jones, who pussy-footed on the issue.

Note—Director of Guffey's suc-

Harr, former Pennsylvania University professor of economics, now an executive of the pro-New Deal Philadelphia Record and city treasurer of Philadelphia. Harr is slated to replace state Democratic chairman Dave Lawrence, who although put in office by Guffey, backed Jones.

SCANDINAVIAN DESK

STARS SAY—

For Saturday, April 27
THE LUNAR transits for this day point to sudden and startling
developments, which may descend
with the velocity of a whirlwind
and come from unexpected sources.
A complete revolution in the affairs and fortunes may be looked for, with change of surroundings, associates and interests. This would seem very propitious and promising were it not that the entire situation may be surrounded by treachery, deception or fraud.
Extreme precaution, vigilance and sagacity should be exercised. Read and sign papers carefully.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden and surprising change, with radical influences affecting the life, its fortunes and destiny. They may anticipate complete change of environments, objectives and associations.
These should benefit greatly if prudence, vigilance and keen insight into sudden opportunities are exercised, since there are dangers from fraud, deceit, trickery and misrepresentation, especially in connection with writings, papers or documents. Be alert to romantic situations suddenly precipitated.

A child born on this day may be alert, quick, shrewd, original and have splendid creative ability. But it may be disposed to substitute
expediency for principle unless it is trained early in prudence and integrity.

For Sunday, April 28

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a most propitious one for all manner of religious, mystical, spiritual and metaphysical vocations and avocations, as the intellectual, psychological and creative forces and faculties are attracted to the subtle and abstract rather than to the commonplace and concrete.

Those whose birthday it is may experience a year of peculiar, subtle or novel adventures, with the forces and faculties turned in the direction of the intriguing, fantastic, curious and intangible.
A child born on this day may have many singular, subtle and unfathomable traits of character, which, if directed and trained into creative channels, might excel in unusual intellectual or cultural expression.

tary Hull's able assistants.

The State Department's system
of keeping in touch is to divide the world into different areas, assigning an expert to study each area. Thus there is the European Division, the Far Eastern Division, the Latin American Division, and so on.

Cumming has charge of the Scandinavian desk in the European Division, and last summer
was far-sighted enough to take a trip through these countries. It was the last time he could have found their territory intact.

The minute Cumming came back
from his Scandinavian tour, things began to break. His desk shows
it. So do the maps strewn over his tables.

He picks up the telephone. "Yes,
Mr. Minister. . . Yes, sir, our latest reports indicate. . .", and he gives the diplomat a fill-in on the latest news. Already Cumming has a new map of Finland which shows its revised borders. He is wondering what will happen to other maps on the wall.

Cumming is only 40, but his dark hair is streaked with grey.
He is not one of those officials who sleep easy in trying times.

NO LABOR PEACE

Roosevelt isn't saying anything about it, but he has definitely abandoned all hope of reopening AFL-CIO peace negotiations this year.

Reluctantly he shelved this plan after quiet feelers made clear that there wasn't a chance in the world
of the two camps getting together.
John L. Lewis was even opposed to sitting down at a conference table.
And while William Green was willing to go that far, he admitted privately he didn't see any use in it.

Roosevelt sounded out the two leaders because of the hundreds of letters received from AFL and CIO members all over the country urging a continuance of peace efforts. Unquestionably there is strong rank-and-file sentiment for harmony, but there is little likelihood of it as long as the top leaders adhere to their stiff-necked personal animosities.

Lewis' refusal to talk terms will result next month in the return to the AFL of the powerful Ladies Garment Workers Union, headed
by shrewd Little Dave Dubinsky.
He warned Lewis last summer
that unless he made peace the Ladies Garment Workers would
bolt the CIO.

Note—Lewis next month will address the Amalgamated Garment Workers convention, which is slated
to pass a resolution endorsing Roosevelt for a third term. Life practically all other CIO unions, the AGW is strong for the President despite Lewis' fulminations against him.

SCANDINAVIAN DESK

One of the busiest men in the State Department is the expert who follows the tragic fate of Finland, Norway, Denmark, Sweden, and Holland.

He is Hugh Cumming, Jr., son of the former Surgeon General of the United States, and one of Sec-

STARS SAY—

For Saturday, April 27
THE LUNAR transits for this
day point to sudden and startling
developments, which may descend
with the velocity of a whirlwind
and come from unexpected sources.

A complete revolution in the affairs and fortunes may be looked
for, with change of surroundings, associates and interests. This would seem very propitious and
promising were it not that the entire situation may be surrounded by treachery, deception or fraud.
Extreme precaution, vigilance and sagacity should be exercised. Read
and sign papers carefully.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden and surprising change, with radical influences affecting the life, its fortunes and destiny. They may anticipate complete change of environments, objectives and associations.
These should benefit greatly if prudence, vigilance and keen insight into sudden opportunities are exercised, since there are dangers
from fraud, deceit, trickery and misrepresentation, especially in connection with writings, papers or documents. Be alert to romantic situations suddenly precipitated.

A child born on this day may be alert, quick, shrewd, original and have splendid creative ability. But it may be disposed to substitute
expediency for principle unless it is trained early in prudence and integrity.

For Sunday, April 28

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a most propitious one for all manner of religious, mystical, spiritual and metaphysical vocations and avocations, as the intellectual, psychological and creative forces and faculties are attracted to the subtle and abstract rather than to the commonplace and concrete.

Those whose birthday it is may experience a year of peculiar, subtle or novel adventures, with the forces and faculties turned in the direction of the intriguing, fantastic, curious and intangible.

A child born on this day may
have many singular, subtle and unfathomable traits of character,
which, if directed and trained into creative channels, might excel in unusual intellectual or cultural expression.

tary Hull's abler assistants.

The State Department's system
of keeping in touch is to divide
the world into different areas, assigning an expert to study each area. Thus there is the European Division, the Far Eastern Division,
the Latin American Division, and
so on.

Cumming has charge of the Scandinavian desk in the European Division, and last summer
was far-sighted enough to take a trip through these countries. It was the last time he could have found their territory intact.

The minute Cumming came back
from his Scandinavian tour, things
began to break. His desk shows
it. So do the maps strewn over his tables.

He picks up the telephone. "Yes,
Mr. Minister. . . . Yes, sir, our latest reports indicate . . .", and he gives the diplomat a fill-in on the latest news. Already Cumming has a new map of Finland which shows its revised borders. He is wondering what will happen to other maps on the wall.

Cumming is only 40, but his
dark hair is streaked with grey.
He is not one of those officials
who sleep easy in trying times.

NO LABOR PEACE

Roosevelt isn't saying anything
about it, but he has definitely
abandoned all hope of reopening AFL-CIO peace negotiations this
year.

Reluctantly he shelved this plan
after quiet feelers made clear that there wasn't a chance in the world
of the two camps getting together.
John L. Lewis was even opposed to
sitting down at a conference table.
And while William Green was willing to go that far, he admitted privately he didn't see any use in it.

Roosevelt sounded out the two leaders because of the hundreds of letters received from AFL and CIO members all over the country
urging a continuance of peace efforts. Unquestionably there is strong rank-and-file sentiment for harmony, but there is little likelihood of it as long as the top leaders adhere to their stiff-necked
personal animosities.

Lewis' refusal to talk terms will result next month in the return
to the AFL of the powerful Ladies
Garment Workers Union, headed
by shrewd Little Dave Dubinsky.
He warned Lewis last summer
that unless he made peace the Ladies Garment Workers would
bolt the CIO.

Note—Lewis next month will address the Amalgamated Garment
Workers convention, which is slated
to pass a resolution endorsing Roosevelt for a third term. Like practically all other CIO unions,
the AGW is strong for the President despite Lewis' fulminations against him.

MONEY RAISED TO PURCHASE LAND FOR CIRCLEVILLE PLAYGROUND

DRIVE GOES ON FOR FUNDS TO BUY EQUIPMENT

Bartholomew Says Committee In Charge Of Soliciting Does Fine Work

WIRE SENT TO LYNCH

Thirteen And Half Acres To Be Taken Over; More Cash To Be Required

The initial phase of Circleville's campaign to obtain property in the northend of the city for playground purposes was completed Saturday, according to Harry L. Bartholomew, chairman of the Elks Lodge committee in charge of the financial drive, when he announced that enough money had been obtained for purchase of grounds.

Bartholomew said Saturday that solicitation committees headed by Dan McClain, W. E. Wallace,

A telegram stating that the necessary fund for the purchase of the playgrounds has been obtained was sent to Frank Lynch, who is recovering from an operation in a Columbus hospital. Mr. Lynch is the former chairman of the Elks Lodge committee seeking the funds and his efforts have contributed much to the campaign's success.

L. M. Mader and T. O. Gilliland have raised approximately $500 in less than a week to bring the total amount to $3,000. Thirteen and one-half acres of land north of Hargus Creek and between Court Street and the Norfolk & Western railroad tracks will be purchased.

Despite the fact that the committee in charge has collected enough money for purchase of the land much more cash is needed to make the project a successful one. Money is needed to provide the city's share of a project that will condition the grounds, and more money is needed to purchase playground and other equipment. Bartholomew insisted that the campaign will continue until funds have been obtained for these purposes.

"We have money enough to buy the land," he pointed out, "but that doesn't mean that we are stopping this campaign. We need much more money and we believe that other civic-minded Circleville residents are ready to join in support of this splendid campaign."

The playground property will eventually be turned over to the city, Mayor W. E. Cady being expected to appoint a Park Commission at an early date.

BOLENDER WILL FILED

In his will filed at the Pickaway County Probate Court George Bolender has left a life estate to his widow, Ede M. Bolender, and $500 has been left to his son, Ralph. The remainder will be divided equally between the children Byron, Vernon and Ralph. The total estate was valued at $8,000.

MONEY RAISED TO PURCHASE LAND FOR CIRCLEVILLE PLAYGROUND

DRIVE GOES ON FOR FUNDS TO BUY EQUIPMENT

Bartholomew Says Committee In Charge Of Soliciting Does Fine Work

WIRE SENT TO LYNCH

Thirteen And Half Acres To Be Taken Over; More Cash To Be Required

The initial phase of Circleville's campaign to obtain property in the northend of the city for playground purposes was completed Saturday, according to Harry L. Bartholomew, chairman of the Elks Lodge committee in charge of the financial drive, when he announced that enough money had been obtained for purchase of grounds.

Bartholomew said Saturday that solicitation committees headed by Dan McClain, W. E. Wallace, and L. M. Mader and T. O. Gilliland have raised approximately $500 in less than a week to bring the total amount to $3,000. Thirteen and one-half acres of land north of Hargus Creek and between Court Street and the Norfolk & Western railroad tracks will be purchased.

Despite the fact that the committee in charge has collected enough money for purchase of the land much more cash is needed to make the project a successful one. Money is needed to provide the city's share of a project that will condition the grounds, and more money is needed to purchase playground and other equipment. Bartholomew insisted that the campaign will continue until funds have been obtained for these purposes.

"We have money enough to buy the land," he pointed out, "but that doesn't mean that we are stopping this campaign. We need much more money and we believe that other civic-minded Circleville residents are ready to join in support of this splendid campaign."

The playground property will eventually be turned over to the city, Mayor W. B. Cady being expected to appoint a Park Commission at an early date.
